TO REVIEW ENTIRE FIELD OF FOREIGN RELATIONS

Series of Important Conferences Will Begin at White House Next Wednesday.

DECISIVE ACTION EXPECTED

President Wilson Will Go Over With Secretary Lansing and Other Cabinet Members Pending Issues With Germany and Great Britain.

WASHINGTON, November 11 .-- A series of the most important conferences of the Wilson administration affeeting American foreign relations will begin at the White House next Wednesday. President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing, in a number of conferences, will review the entire held of foreign issues, including those with England, which have been held in abeyance for more than a year. As unotherally outlined to-day, the subjects to be taken up, and the order in which they will be considered are as

With Germany: The reported destruction of British merchantmen without warning, endangering American lives; the reported attacks on the Co-retary Lansing, and aside from the general consideration to be given these matters at the regular Cabinet meetings, President Wilson is expected to call into consultation Secretary of War Baker on questions relating to Mexico; Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo of questions of retaliation against Great Britain for her war upon American commerce, and other department heads who will be charged with responsibil-Ity for the execution of the policies decided upon.

There are many questions in the foreign relations field which will be dealt with soon, but the more important will take precedence.

Officials in all administration circles look for decided action on some of these matters in the immediate future. They point to certain declarations in the Democratic platform and assert they were either written or ordered into the platform by the President, and correctly state his attitude
